TARIFF THE ISSUE.

Evidence continues to multiply that the tariff will be the real issue in the approaching campaign. It is not doubted, of course, that preparedness and foreign relations will figure extensively, but both parties are agreed—or pretend to be—on the subject of preparedness, and while it is perfectly possible that the President and Congress are devoting far more attention to an attempt to hoodwink the people than to preparing for national defense, the Republicans never rave, and probably never will, make a campaign on an even partially negative issue. They must have a constructive policy to fight for, and on the subject of the tariff and direct taxation there is a radical and admitted difference between the two parties. With regard to foreign relations, the blundering record of this administration speaks for itself. There is hardly an American with red blood in his veins who does not bitterly resent the conduct of the United States in Mexico or fail severely to condemn President Wilson for his recognition of Carranza and his insistence on allowing rifles and cartridges, even to this day, to be shipped into Mexico, while every diplomat and military expert connected with the government is begging him to stop it. The Republican leaders are convinced, however, that intelligent voters have not forgotten the disastrous effects of the Underwood tariff before the European war temporarily checked its operation, and that they appreciate the peril to American prosperity should the war end without the Underwood bill having been revised.

There is an old line to the effect that "it takes nine tailors to make a man." A Japanese tailor is paid 32 cents a day. Nine Japanese tailors get about what one American tailor is paid and the Democratic low tariff will give all Japanese tailors a job working on clothing measured in America and made up in Japan. Such is the folly of the law.

A Progressive caucus recently held in a Maine city comprised sixteen men—who proceeded to name nine delegates and nine alternates to a state convention. Wonder who the other two were.

LUCKY AND UNLUCKY THINGS.
(Answers.)
"Lucky" and "unlucky" have come to be applied to gathering blossoms, to horseshoes, to the color of hair, to your manner of "saying things"—in a word, to every possible event in life. It is unlucky to "have a dead blossom;" it is unlucky to go out with your "shoe laces untied"—the latter we naturally believe; it is unlucky to bring "hawthorn blossoms within the house;" it is "lucky to hear the cricket."

The latter is, of course, supposed to bring luck into the house.
Very lucky it is to find a spider on your clothes; it is called a money-spinner in many parts of the country.
Feather beds should not be turned on a Sunday. If your teeth grow widely apart you will be a traveler. If you have a mole on your back you will have money by the sack. On the other hand, a mole at the base of the neck shows that "you will be hanged."

Cæsar, Napoleon, Bismarck and others were not above the superstition of "lucky" and "unlucky" days. Thursday was the "unlucky" day of Henry VIII, of his son Edward, and of his daughters, Mary and Elizabeth. Isn't it strange that they all should have died upon this day? But it is a fact.
Anyhow, what is luck?

Save Daughter
Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.
Ready, Ky.—"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs. Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months."
I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.
Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.
At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good. But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.
I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased, and I look the picture of health."
If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.
